An Introduction To The History of Persian Carpet Weaving

Persian rug has a long history. Persian Rugs are known as one of the oldest oriental rugs. Carpet is a part of Iranian's culture and life. There is not enough information about the exact date of the carpet weaving.

Pazyryk Carpet is the oldest rug. It was found in Turkestan in ۱۹۴۷. It is at St. Petersburg's Hermitage Museum. During the Safavid period, many arts and crafts, especially carpet weaving, developed.

The Golden Age of Persian carpet weaving happened during the Safavid kingdom, when Shah Tahmasp (۱۵۸۷-۱۵۲۴) built factories for carpet production. Before this time, carpet weaving was a rural skill, with simple patterns.

Persian rugs are very famous for their beauty and quality. Persian carpets have very different designs and colors. The quality of rugs vary in different areas. Each region, has its own unique design, color, technique.

The Iranian nomads weave beautiful carpets to cover floors and other parts of their tents. They also were making something to decorate their tents.

Nomads provided their own supplies from natural materials around the place where they live. They use the hair and wool of the goat and sheep for the warp, weft and pile.

They made different colours from plants or mineral resources. The name of the carpet is taken from the area where it is woven and their ethnic group. For example, Lori - Kurdish - Baluchi - Turkmen - Armenian, Kermani, Esfahani and Tabriz.

Nomadic carpets, village (rural )carpets and workshop(urban)carpets are the types of weaving.
